<input type="checkbox"/> Inward	All about what we do ourselves in the provision of accredited CME activities. The practicalities around developing activities, covering the basic concepts as well as offering guidance for the seasoned expert, from educational design, planning, outcomes evaluation and incorporating education in the professional setting.
<input type="checkbox"/> Outward	Listening to others. How to incorporate the viewpoint, objectives, motivations and requirements of related groups and individuals to the CME process – such as patients, learners, government, regulators, and industry.
<input type="checkbox"/> Onward	Putting things into practice. CME is increasingly delivered by a collaboration, and involving a more diverse audience. We take a look at how collaborations, partnerships and interprofessional dialogue are helping to make CME more relevant and effective.

Abstract (max. 400 words)

Agreement and Signature

To be completed by the primary author:

- I believe that this abstract could also be of value as an oral presentation and am happy for it to be considered for this if suitable.
- As #10ECF will be certified for CME credit, if my abstract is accepted for oral presentation, I understand that I will need to complete the financial declaration and disclosure process.

By submitting this application, if accepted, I commit to attending #10ECF in Dublin to present this poster and, if applicable, oral presentation.
